Dr. Kevin has helped me in several ways-when I first started coming it was for chronic neck issues-which continues to be a work in progress-but I have had much relief from. Another issue has been a problem with my ears. Which they always felt like they needed to pop and I had a feeling of fullness which made it hard to hear and wasn't going away. After a couple of visits that problem was gone entirely. Also, I believe therapeutic massage has helped as well. For my neck and back, I lived on Advil and went to PT for about a year. For my ears, I went to a doctor, then ENT Specialist, tried antibiotics, decongestants and was scheduled for MRI and audiologist appointment which I was able to cancel after success with Dr. Kevin. I never had tried chiropractic prior, didn't like any procedure that would be bone cracking-especially with my neck. PT had done that several times and I hated it! After doctor appointments and PT appointments and Advil and muscle relaxants, I finally have improvement. After initial addressing of my problems, I do not have to come to Dr. Kevin that often either, which I always heard was something with Chiropractors. I understand though the knowledge that Dr. Kevin has shared with me-how to listen and understand what my body is doing, especially pertaining to stress and he has never done any bone cracking procedures that would have made me feel uncomfortable.
